The Hungarian Plains.

At first the plains softly undulating are dimpled here and there with shady hollows; while like golden islands in an ocean of vivid green lie long stretches of yellow colza and ripening corn. On the gently rising upland yonder a dark round speck appears against the sunlit sky; gradually it elongates, and we hear a voice singing in a quivering treble some national idyl. It is a husband-man emerging from the hollow and trudging homeward along the crest of the undulation. Then all is silence and solitude once more, till coming to a standstill at one of the primitive wells by the roadside, we hear the distant rumble of a wagon as its wheels grind heavily along, the driver of it sing ng, as it goes, a melancholy ditty in the minor key. Then one by one the villages and solitary farms lying on the horizon die away, and we enter the boundless plains. How lonely we feel, and what tiny atoms of creation, with no objects to measure ourselves by save birds of prey, and the white clouds sailing far up in the great, blue, glorious sky! Our carriage, though imposing only in the matter of size, proved very comfortable, its ponderous hood shielding us from the heat of the sun, save where, taking mean advantage of weak places in its constitution, it shot fiery arrows in upon us, scarcely less piercing than those that pour down upon the head of the traveler in the desert. The sun reflects itself in the white and dusty road.
Above the soil on either side there is a flickering motion of the air like the haze from a lime-kiln. Everything is hot and dusty; not an insect is seen hovering about the low bushes which now and then skirt our pathway. All nature is taking its siesta in the dreamy noon tide, and nothing is awake but the scarlet pimpernel that with wide-open, unblinking eye looks straight up at the blazing sun. We now come to a marshy district, where a lonely heron is contemplating its lovely image in a small still pool, and then away we go again —out into the broad purple patches of newly upturned soil, bands of emerald corn, and speckled streaks of tobacco, with its large red and green leaves, and on through cool labyrinths of maize, till we come to vast tracts of uncultivated land, where wild horses with flying manes go scampering across its surface with the natural grace of untamed things. As day advances and the shadows of the clouds begin to lengthen across the plains, a breeze springs up and plays about us softly, rustling the large white, surplice-like sleeves of the driver's garment, but not sufficiently strong to stir his black and flowing locks, which, weighted with some unctuous matter, rest calmly on his shoulders. Our nearest town is Veszprim, but at the pace we are at present going we are scarcely likely to reach it before nightfall, if then. But what does it matter, when we have the whole of to-morrow, and the next day, and the day after that, aye, and our whole lives, to do the distance in if necessary? How delightful to enjoy for once the true feeling of rest in this world of hurry-scurry, where we are but too often compelled to live at high pressure! Let, oh! let us for once take life easily under the broad and peaceful canopy of heaven, and reduce the dolce far niente to a science.— From 'Magyarland.'

—A literary man writes to the London Spectator that he can get more exercise, and with less fatigue, by an hour's tricycling than by three hours' walking. There is an exhilaration about it, he says, which can only be compared to that of riding a good horse.
By abandoning cigars and taking up tricycling he has entirely cured bilious headaches.

The "Smartness" of Worms and Fish.

"I have made some of my most interesting studies of nature in the morning," said Seth Green. "That is the time to see the insects at their best—to see the mud wasps stinging the spiders without killing them, and packing them away where they are kept alive for weeks to be used when needed. I have seen a small green worm hanging down on a web. An ant, stationed on the limb above, pulls up the web, and just as the worm comes in reach of his tiny claws, down drops Mr. Worm. The ant pulls up again and again, and worm lets out another reef and goes down. This sort of thing continues until finally the ant grapples the worm and both go down together in a grand scramble, in which the worm manages to shake off the ant.
This leaves the worm on the ground.
His web is so strong that it is still fastened to the limb above. What does Mr. Ant do? Give it up? No, sir. I have seen him go up the trunk of that tree, crawl out onto the same limb, and go to work again pulling up the same web. Then after another battle, I have known the ant to get the better of the fight and lug the worm off to his hole, three rods away.

"Why, talk about reasoning powers!
The perseverance and instinct of these little creatures is wonderful. People go out to fish. They splash around, stand up in their boat, drop their lines three feet away, and wonder because they don't catch trout. They forget that trout can see. Fish learn that tackle and fish are, as a rule, local in their habitation. There are not as many gypsies among fish as among men. Any man who will take the pains to study fish—or who will remember a tithe of what he reads about them—can catch them. They are smart, but our brains will beat them.
I remember once of fishing for salmon trout for a long time and taking nothing.
Finally I concluded to get down and look into the water, and so, throwing my coat over my head, I got the required shade and peered down. The salmon would sail up and look at the minnow. Then, with a quick dart, he would close his teeth round one-half the minnow and open them again like a flash. He did not attempt to eat the minnow, and half of the severed body would drop to the bottom. When it had fallen to the bed of the lake the salmon would go down leisurely and eat it. The next time when I dropped my hook and felt the quick bite of the trout I let out enough line to send the hook to the bottom, and the result was that when the salmon went down for his meal he was fooled and I had him."

Canned Corn.

There are over sixty corn-canning establishments in the State of Maine, and the number of cans of corn annually put up is nearly twelve millions. The farmers are paid about 3 cents per can for the corn, the tin and solder costs about 3 cents, and the remaining 4 or 5 cents goes to the manufacturer for putting up and marketing. The cans hold about twenty-six ounces of corn, and farmers are able to grow from 1,000 to 3,000 cans per acre, the average being not far from 1,500 cans, of a cash value of $45. There are several factories in Medway and Franklin, Mass., and others further south, but Maine puts up about one-third of the corn in this country.

—A Western young man aged 18 has eloped with a married woman of three-score years. This æsthetic craze for antiquities is becoming altogether too general and threatens to cause trouble.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

TUESDAY EVENING, OCT. 2, 1882.

TERMS:—The EVENING BULLETIN is published daily, and served free of postage at 6 cents per week; 25 cents per month; 75 cents per three months; $1.50 per six months, and $3 per year, payable in advance.

THE EVENING BULLETIN HAS A LARGER CIRCULATION IN THIS CITY, CHESTER AND ABERDEEN, OHIO, THAN ANY OTHER PAPER PUBLISHED IN MAYSVILLE.

JUDGE COWLING, of New York, has decided that drunkenness is no excuse for crime.

Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York are considered almost certain Democratic States this year.

Nearly two and a half million bushels of coal left Pittsburg for Cincinnati and Louisville on the recent rise.

Up to the present time there have been seven hundred and eighty-three cases of yellow fever and eighty-eight deaths at Pensacola, Fla.

In the United States District Court a verdict of guilty was rendered in the case of Joseph R. Black; one of the minor participants in the Star Route frauds.

Another negro has been nominated by the Republicans for congress. This time it is in the Louisville district. More Dead sea fruit cast to the colored brother.

The September crop report of the Agricultural Department is at hand and gives a very cheering exhibit as to the corn and wheat prospects. The crops in the south especially are in fine condition.

Col. J. A. Dawson, formerly of Frankfort, and at one time connected with the Louisville Ledger, has received the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney in the Denver district of Colorado.

REPORTS to the treasury show that during August last there was $3,086,439 in excess of imports of merchandise into the United States, while during the same month last year exports were $5,783,425 in excess.

A CALL signed by several hundred Democrats has been made upon Hon. J. W. Hendrick, of Fleming county, to become a candidate for re-election to the Legislature. Mr. R. K. Hart is already announced as candidate for the nomination.

Mr. T. B. Reed, of Louisville, has been selected as chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee, in place of Major J. M. Wright, resigned. The Courier-Journal says of him: He is a young man with a practical knowledge of political affairs and no end of git-up-and-git. He will instill new life into the committee and make the fight a rattling one all along the line.

COUNTY POINTS.

WASHINGTON.

Col. W. W. Baldwin's new barn, No. 5, is an ornament to the neighborhood and very creditable to the skill of the carpenter who built it. It is filled with the finest Mason county tobacco, and the patent ventilators are so ornamental and attractive as to give the structure the appearance of a chapel, which causes many persons to stop and inquire as to which religious denomination will begin work on his new place.

GERMANTOWN.

A young Mr. Browning of Indiana, is visiting relatives in this place.

Bruce Walker was hooked by a cow last week, but only slightly injured.

A boiler and engine and the lot upon which they stood, were sold Saturday. M. S. McLean bought the lot. The other things were bought by different parties.

W. O. Pollock's town property was offered for sale Saturday. The house on Broadway, was sold to F. M. Tolle, for $600. The bid on the other house was rejected.

The different privileges at the fair grounds, were offered for sale Saturday, but all bids were rejected. Our fair commences next week and it is expected of many, that it will be an unusually large one. The Secretary was over the largest portion of Bracken county, last week, and nearly every one he talked with expected to attend.

OVER THE STATE.

Harrison county jail is empty. Shelbyville wants a workhouse.

Covington is undergoing a nail famine.

The local option law has gone into effect in Greenville.

Warren and Woodford circuit courts begin next Monday.

Bath county expects to realize $1,000,000 from her tobacco crop.

Several tobacco barns have burned in Webster county in the past few days.

The Madison grand jury returned an even 200 indictments, and then adjourned.

A Bowling Green man has a shot gun which did good service in the Blackhawk war.

Danville physicians think of utilizing the bicycle as a means of locomotion in making calls.

Bath county's tobacco crop this year is said to be worth $1,000,000 and her wheat crop $300,000.

The Nelson Record has been presented with four stalks of corn, each of them being nineteen feet high.

Mark Smith, formerly of Lexington, has been nominated for district attorney by the Democrats of Tombstone, Arizona.

At Salvisa, Boyle county, hogs are worth $10 per 100, and some cattle are selling at four and a half and five cents per pound.

G. Becker, of Cincinnati, bought of Harry Berry, Nicholas county, 91 head of New York cattle for six and one-half cents. They were shipped Wednesday night.

Lexington Transcript: Ballard & Williamson have displayed in their store window the tooth of a mammoth fish which was found in the Ohio river near Foster, Bracken county. The tooth weighs 13 pounds.

Mt. Sterling Democrat: The scare in this county concerning house burning tobacco has subsided. The crop is turning out better than usual, for every man has "the best crop in the county." The average yield in the county will likely reach 1,200 pounds per acre.

Two brave little girls in Ballard county named Neal, found a negro under the bed and, calling in the dog, they armed themselves with brooms and the trio soon dislodged the darkey, punishing him severely before he succeeded in escaping. The girls are aged respectively ten and twelve years, and were alone in the house.

NEWS BREVITIES.

It is said that John I. Davenport, of New York, has obtained full confessions of the writer of the Morey letter, and will publish the entire matter in pamphlet form.

Much damage was done in Ireland Sunday by a hurricane, which drove many ships ashore at Cork and flooded the town.

Chaplain Power, of Washington, has commenced a personal canvass of the influential members of the Christian churches of Indiana for subscriptions to aid the building fund of the Garfield Memorial Church, of which he is a pastor.

It is reported that Miss Calhoun, a young lady from South Carolina, and a great-niece of the statesman, who has been studying in London for the last two years, is shortly to appear on the stage as Hester Grazebrook and Rosalind.

Dr. Wm. Egry, a former influential citizen of Dayton, has been arrested at his house in Oberkirch, Germany, for alleged seditious utterances against Emperor William. He has been sentenced to four years imprisonment for the offense.

Smashed his Harp.

Springfield, O., special: Andre Bonnier, a recent importation from Italy's sunny clime, bought a new hand organ in Columbus and came to this unmusical town. After grinding faithfully to a business of about four cents a day, he got disgusted this evening, smashed his organ on Market street, distributed the tubes to small boys, stuck the crank in his pocket, and is now looking for something that pays better than music in this metropolis.

The Grayson Carter county, correspondent of the Kentucky Democrat tells of a snake lately seen in that county, with a head six inches broad, ten or twelve feet long, and forty inches in circumference. A gentleman of the same county had two horses and a cow killed by the snake two years ago.

ALL the farmers hereabout,
Are fearful, so we learn.
That very recent heavy fogs
Will make tobacco burn.
The money that they get for it;
Just on the palings chalk it;
Is all the burning they need fear,
And that will burn the pocket.

PAWPAWS have appeared in our market. They are said so be plentiful this season.

MRS. DAN SEARLES who lost a child by the disaster to the steamer Robert E. Lee, is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Julius Culbertson, of Maysville.

SOME of the farmers in this neighborhood have expressed the fear that the dense fogs, recently, have a tendency to cause the tobacco now hanging in the barns to house-burn. Especially that which was cut while too green, is thought to be in danger.

MONDAY afternoon about two o'clock, Mike Egan fireman on a construction train of the Kentucky Central, fell between the engine and a car loaded with lumber at Millersburg and had his leg broken below the knee. He was taken to his home at Covington by the south p. m. train.

AT Concord, on the night of the first inst., Ed Lewis with several companions, who had been drinking freely, attempted to cross the river in a skiff, but before reaching the opposite shore the boat upset and Lewis was drowned. The body was recovered.

MONDAY night about twelve o'clock, as Wm. Slack, who works at Robinson & Co.'s flour mill, was returning home, he was assaulted near the postoffice by two persons one of whom is supposed to have been Charles Dinger, and badly beaten. Mr. Slack, we are informed, knows no reason for the attack upon him. The officers hunted for Dinger this morning but he was not found.

A POSTAL card from Mr. J. A. Walton, the clever Secretary of the Union Agricultural Society, says the prospects are very fine for a successful meeting next week and it promises to be in point of interest and attendance one of the old-fashioned fairs. The departments are all well filled and the premiums very liberal. The grounds have been much improved, and many new and attractive features added to the programme.

DR. LAVANI'S SPECIFIC for the cure of neuralgia, rheumatism, headache and nervousness, now being introduced by J. James Wood, is a medicine of great merit, and has been widely and successfully used in other parts of the country. It is not a patent medicine, but a tried remedy that is known and where it has been used, warmly approved by the medical profession. You have only to give this remedy a trial to be satisfied of its great merit.

A SAD FIX.

The Story of a Young Kentucky Girl About to Become a Mother.

She Accuses Her Step-Father, Who is Arrested in this City—His Story and Admissions.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

At the Busby House, corner of Broadway and Fifth streets, is a girl of scarcely 16 years, who is about to become a mother, and who is without money or friends. Her story, together with other developments, caused the police last night to arrest on suspicion her step-father, whom she charges with being her seducer. The case first reached the ears of the police by the landlady of the Busby House, consulting Officers Adams and Cavagna as to what she had best do with her unfortunate boarder, being unable to longer keep her, as her step-father had failed to pay her bill as he promised to do. An Enquirer reporter called at the house with the officers to investigate the case.

The prospective mother was found in a room on the second floor of the establishment, which is a cheap, unpretending hotel, mainly patronized by mechanics. She was surrounded by several ladies living in the house, including Mrs. Busby. Although so young, she is well developed, and looks at least eighteen. She is quite good-looking, with light hair and complexion, and apparently as innocent of the seriousness of her condition as a new-born babe. Her name is Nellie Hennelly, although she generally goes by her step-father's name, which is Gates. Her home is in Bath county, Ky., on a turnpike between Bethel and Sherburn, where her mother keeps tollgate. However, she was raised from childhood up to a year and a half ago by her grandfather, Martin McConnell, a respectable gentleman living in Maysville, Ky. Her step-father, J. C. Gates, is a tobacco packer. He was also at the hotel. He is thirty years of age.

From Mrs. Busby it was learned that Gates brought his step-daughter to her house eleven weeks ago, when he promised to settle all of the daughter's bills. He paid down $15, and that was all she got. Gates registered as J. B. Botts, and Nellie's name was given as Mary Brown. Mrs. Busby soon learned the girl's condition, and also the right names of both parties. Gates called a few times, but finally quit coming, and did not send any money for Nellie's board. Mrs. B., not wishing to turn the girl out of doors, informed her relatives, Martin King and George James, living in this city, and also telegraphed to Mr. McConnell, at Maysville. About four weeks ago the grandfather and grandmother came up to the city, and then Nellie acknowledged for the first time that her step-father was the cause of all her trouble. Mr. McConnell left, stating that he would send Mrs. Busby $50, which he never did. About a week ago Gates was in the city again, and on Tuesday he took Nellie out and did not return with her until the next morning.

Nellie said that her father and mother separated when she was very young, and her grandfather took her to raise. Soon after her step-father took her to his home he, as she alleges, got the best of her. She had told Mrs. Busby before of the way Gates, as she alleges, ruined her. She further stated that she finally told all to her mother, who whipped her. Finding that she was in a delicate condition, Gates brought her to this city. She declares he once gave her some medicine to take telling her it would kill her child and threatened to kill her if she ever told on him. When he took her out last Tuesday night it was to some room, where they remained together all night.

Gates denied the girl's accusations, and said: "Take me before her and she will not say so." Being put face to face, Nellie, on being questioned, said: "Yes, he is the one who did it." In the girl's presence, Gates acknowledged they went out last Tuesday night, but he would not tell where they went. He contradicted himself many times in speaking of the case, and finally acknowledged that the reason he left home with his step-daughter was because he feared personal violence from the hands of neighbors, as it had been intimated to him that they suspected him of being her seducer. First he said that Nellie was bad while she lived in Maysville, and her grandmother found it out, and it was considered best to have her live with him. Again he said he knew she was virtuous when she came to his house. The girl's grandmother is supposed to be in the city, and the officer concluded to arrest Gates until she can be seen, and the authorities in Kentucky telegraphed to Mrs. Busby does not wish to turn the girl out of the house, but she can not afford to keep her much longer for nothing. She will probably be sent to the hospital to-day. None of her relatives have as yet assisted her. One living in this city remarked that she "wouldn't be disgraced by taking Nellie to her house." The girl's condition is certainly a deplorable one when her step-father, admitting what he has, will do nothing for her. Gates declares he is flat broke, and he had but a few dollars when searched at the station house. He had a pawn ticket for his revolver, which he pawned day before yesterday.

THE BURNED STEAMER.

Further Particulars of the River Horror, Origin of the Fire.

VICKSBURG, Miss., Oct. 2, 1882.—The Lee left Vicksburg, bound for New Orleans, with thirty passengers. The fire was discovered in the cook house, but what caused it is not known.

In less than ten minutes after the discovery of the fire, which was almost in its incipency, the boat was burned to the water's edge, and sunk, and only a few charred timbers and an ugly hulk are all that was left remaining of that magnificent floating palace and champion of Western waters.

The Lee sunk in about twelve feet of water. She is a total wreck, and William Perkins, her engineer, says that all her splendid machinery will be fit only for scrap iron.

Mrs. Dan Searles, a young wife with her infant son only one year of age, with the courage and calmness of a Spartan mother in the face of danger, took her baby in her arms, throwing a life-preserver about her person, leaped from the after-cabin into the murky water beneath. By some disarrangement of the life-preserver, Mrs. Searles was thrown up on her back, an attitude in which she was rendered perfectly helpless, and this, together with the shock occasioned by her heavy fall into the water, caused her to lose her grasp upon the child, and it passed from her arms into the depths beneath. Half an hour after the burning of the boat, Mrs. Searles, was picked up in midstream, in an almost insensible condition.

It is estimated that from twenty to thirty persons were drowned or burned. The Lee and cargo were valued at $175,000.

Delicate Surgical Operation.

On last Sunday, October 1st Dr. J. W. R. Corlis, assisted by D. T. S. Bradford, E. C. Dimmitt, and D. J. Wallin, operated upon Mrs. Eliza Fronk, of Brooksville, aged sixty two years, successfully removing an ovarian tumor weighing thirty pounds. On the 25th of June last these same surgeons removed from Mrs. Geo. McDonald, of Bracken county, an ovarian tumor weighing 35 pounds, and the lady has long since recovered, and is now entirely well. An account of this latter operation was published in the BULLETIN at the time.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

USEFUL AND SUGGESTIVE.

—A saturated solution of sulphate of copper in water is recommended as the cheapest and best thing for writing on zinc labels. The writing should be done with a hardwood stile or a blunt quill pen.

—Cocoanut Pudding: Beat two eggs with one cupful of new milk; add one-quarter of a pound of grated cocoanut; mix it with three tablespoonfuls each of grated bread and powdered sugar, two ounces of melted butter, five ounces of raisins, and one teaspoonful of grated lemon-peel; beat the whole well together; pour the mixture into a buttered dish, and bake in a slow oven; then turn it out, dust sugar over it and serve. This pudding may be either boiled or baked.—Chicago Journal.

—Rhubarb Pie: Rhubarb should be peeled and cut in two-inch lengths, and cooked with only water enough to cover the bottom of the kettle, with half a pound of brown sugar to each pound spread over the top, and the steam shut in. It burns easily, and should be cooked at the side of the range or set upon a brick till the sugar dissolves with the juice to form a sirup. Line the pie pans with puff paste, made not very rich, fill with the stewed rhubarb and place broad strips of paste, cut with a paste jagger across and bake; or use the plain pie paste and bake with a top crust. Sift powdered sugar over.—Chicago Herald.

—To make a potato patch out of part of the Lewis College grounds is undertaken by Perley Belknap, a prominent citizen of Northfield Vt., who asserts a claim to the grounds on account of work done when the buildings were erected in 1866. The students set out a hundred or more trees a few weeks since, some of which interfered with his plants and were pulled up. The next morning Mr. Belknap's newly-planted potatoes were found on top of the ground, and the students had the patch thoroughly harrowed. The trees were replaced and the field seeded and rolled. Mr. Belknap was hanged in effigy the other night from a tree on the common and buried the following day with muffled drum.—N. Y. Post.

The Three Napoleons.

Napoleon II. was the son of Napoleon I. and Maria Louisa, and was born at Paris, March 20, 1811, and died at Schonbrunn, July 22, 1832. The young Napoleon's father bestowed on him the title of King of Rome, and on his abdication designated him as his successor to the throne as Napoleon II., and he was recognized as such by the Executive Committee appointed by the Chambers previous to the final accession of Louis XVIII. in 1815. The young Prince went to Austria, where he was educated, and the right of succession to his mother's dominions in Parma being withdrawn from him in 1817, the Emperor of Austria conferred on him in July, 1818, the rank of an Austrian Prince, with the title of Duke of Reichstadt, and provided him with eminent instructors. The efforts made after the revolution of 1830 in his favor were unsuccessful, but the young man became greatly interested in the military history of his father, and received from Marmont at course of instruction in the Napoleonic campaigns. He entered the army and went through several grades, and in 1831 commanded as Lieutenant Colonel one of the Hungarian infantry regiments of Vienna. He died of laryngeal phthisis in the same room in which his father dictated peace to Austria. On the establishment of the second empire in 1852, he became known as Napoleon II. in the order of imperial succession. Napoleon III. popularly known as Louis Napoleon, was born at Paris, April 20, 1808, and died at Chiselhurst, England, January 9, 1873. His mother was Hortense de Beauharnais, who had lived apart from her husband, King Louis, of Holland, and his paternity was questioned, although it has been ascribed to the Dutch Admiral Verhuel. King Louis himself only reluctantly acknowledged the child as his son at the command of Napoleon I. Hortense was the daughter of Alexandre Beauharnais and Josephine, afterward wife of Napoleon; and, in accordance with the wish of Napoleon, she became the wife of his brother Louis.
